Dear Fellow Pastors and Church Leaders,

Greetings in the precious name of Jesus. I'm writing to you today as a fellow pastor to share a resource that has greatly benefited our church family here at The Pentecostals of Gainesville. In these challenging times, the safety of our congregations has become not just an important consideration—but a vital responsibility. That's why I strongly recommend that you take a close look at the training and services offered by Protect His House at www.phhtraining.com.

We recently partnered with Protect His House to develop and strengthen our church's safety and medical response team, and I can confidently say their training has brought a new level of preparedness, professionalism, and peace of mind to our congregation.

Their team provided us with:

- Comprehensive Active Shooter Training, tailored specifically for church environments
- Medical Emergency Response Training, including first aid and trauma care essentials
- De-escalation Techniques to help our team handle disruptive situations with wisdom and control
- Customizable Safety Team Handbook Outlines, allowing us to structure policies and procedures unique to our church's needs
- Online Courses, which made training more accessible and allowed our volunteers to grow at their own pace
- In-Person Instruction, which brought practical, hands-on experience to all facets of our safety ministry

Protect His House doesn't just offer content—they offer a ministry mindset. Their approach aligns with Pentecostal values, understanding both the spiritual and practical needs of our churches. This isn't a generic security program. It's a Christ-centered, ministry-aware resource designed to empower the local church to steward its people with care and excellence.

I believe every church—regardless of size—should have a safety and medical team equipped to respond with competence and compassion. Whether you're starting from the ground up or looking to bring a fresh level of training to an existing team, Protect His House is a partner you can trust.

Feel free to reach out to me personally if you'd like more insight into our experience. Otherwise, I strongly encourage you to explore what they offer at www.phhtraining.com. Your church's safety is worth the investment.

In His service,
